As someone who loves the original Alien movie this game does a fantastic job of taking the original aesthetic and building on it. Just like the movie this game becomes incredibly desperate as plan after plan is ruined by panicking humans, the menacing Working Joe androids and the Alien itself. The game forces you to be brave too. You can hide for a while but the Alien is really thorough when it senses you and much quicker than you are. The slightest bit of noise and it will be on you in seconds in the most horrifying ways. It may look like an action shooter to some because it has grenades and guns but it really isn't. It's old-school horror.. My video review:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MSrXLxcM994>

I've tried other Racquetball games on the Vive. I've found them boring.

But this game, with it's unique retro atmosphere and variety of play modes, stayed fun for me.

It's also a great workout. I'm glad I bought this.. Done by these developers <http://tapitgames.com/index.php>

A h.o.g \(hidden object game\) that continues on vaguely form the first. I say vaguely because the first one hardly ever took itself seriously and almost had a goofy scoobydoo type feel for it. This one on the other hand from get go launches a much more adult subject and story line and tries somewhat to mimic a 'shutter island' type of adventure.

The story begins with you getting asked by someone to investigate a secluded assylum. When you get there you get greeted with a 'nothing to see here go back' only to have someone immediately commit suicide in front of you. From that point on you begin to realise that there must be some really crazy people in there and there is. One of the most disturbing I came across was a guy whose whole life ambition must be to become a 'crazy cat lady'. The art room was full of paintings of 'mr mittens'. Disturbing i tell you.

There are a number of face palm moments in game like when a guy in a neighbouring cell just happens to have a stick of dynamite to give you. apparently they are easy to get in an assylum. But there are also many clever moments in the game too, like how you have to stop a dripping tap, and even the shot gun trap at the beginning.

I really liked the music in the game, though repititive, but it really did build the suspense at certain moments. The graphics had its moments, for instance there is one scene where a guy is placed in a wheel chair that disappears and magically reappears after you click on something and when owen is lying in bed you can make his head disappear lol. Don't ask me how, but you can. Hence in some area's it just seemed rushed to get the product finished by maybe a certain dead line. What further makes me feel this way is the fact that there are no rewards for the person after they have finished. No secret room, no prequel little adventure, no photo gallery, no behind the scenes gif. Nothing where the developer says 'THANKYOU' to the customer and fan base.

Instead for those that want 100% achievement rating they will be forced to play the whole thing again and play mahjong instead of hidden objects, and if you have missed certain clues along the way you may be forced to play a 3rd time. This is where the game, since it has very little replay value begins to get tedious. I really wish they would stop doing that.

A lot of people have stated that they found the twists and turns in the plot to be many and they were suprised to find out who the murderer was. REALLY? Seriously I guessed it pretty much straight away. It's not hard to work out that if they say a certain person is the murderer, you can bet your bottom dollar that they aren't. And how hard is it to work out that the murderer is the person NOT dying. Seriously as soon as you show up people start dying everywhere around you. So much so that I was really surprised that none of the characters pointed their finger at me and said, "YOU ARE THE MURDERER".

While i enjoyed the ending, I did not quite understand what they were trying to say. Were the developers trying to say that some murderers are just misunderstood people and really nice people inside? Oh that's nice to know. Jeffery Dharmar why dont you come around to my house for a BBQ? Lets be friends...

No doubt your curious now, buy the game when it goes on sale...

<http://store.steampowered.com/curator/6843548/>. Meh. Not nearly as good as the first True Fear, which I have played four or five times. This game I'll probably never play again. I waited five years for the story to continue and still no conclusion or answers. Hopefully another five years will not pass before we find out what the heck is going on with Her and Holly! After playing this one I'm not sure if I care anymore.. Fun but short game.

Great fantasy game with interesting pvp type aspects. wasted my money on this game i buyed it 100% dead need my money back. ONLY buy this game if you have a group of friends to play with.

There are NO servers EVER (sometmes, but it's always a private match).. Loved this game since I first played it in the late 2000's, and I love it now! Great game to pass the time and the story/world building is spot on as usual!. There are a handful of turn-based strategy games that are simple but deep enough to keep me immersed, this is one them. I bought the game yesterday and manage to in 12 hours in it already.
